

Inspiring young women to be leaders through music education, performance excellence and service.

I hope this edition of Noteworthy News finds you healthy and making your way safely through these hazy times.

Spirito has been busy reimagining and re-creating during this extraordinary phase. From hiring our outstanding new Artistic Director, Carling FitzSimmons, to constructing our first ever online music curriculum, it's been quite a year. Exciting, a bit daunting, but through it all Spirito has stayed strong.

Arts organizations have taken quite a hit from the Coronavirus pandemic, in particular choral music organizations. Unfortunately Spirito has experienced significant revenue loss. The Spirito Board and staff are working diligently to recover and we could truly use your help.

A gift to Spirito will support our singers as we launch our innovative virtual curriculum and make plans to sing, learn and perform together again safely in 2021. We firmly believe that the beauty and inspiration music provides are extremely important for our singers — and our entire community.

There are brighter days ahead and Spirito will be there with you celebrating, thriving and singing! We value your encouragement and kindness, and truly hope we can count on your support.

With gratitude,
